1955 MURMURMONTIS

West Virginia Wesleyan College

Buckhannon, West Virginia

DEDICATION

We, the editors and staff, respectfully dedicate the 1955 Murmurmontis to the Physical Education Department of West Virginia Wesleyan College. It is our belief that no other department has been more of an influence for general good in the lives of Wesleyan students than this one.

This department has had as its dual task the development of the mind and body, alike. Athletics are a vital segment of education through which "a sound mind and a sound body" are attained—and through instruction and physical participation in physical education classes, intramural programs and varsity sports, this department has nobly fulfilled its purpose.

Athletics were first officially recognized by Wesleyan September 11, 1902; although an athletic program was in existence as early as 1898. It was on Thanksgiving Day in this year that Wesleyan's first football team took the field. Wesleyan's colors were instituted during this game as Colonel Frank M. Thompson, our first full-back, from Pinehurst, N. C., wore an orange and black turtleneck sweater he had had at Princeton.

Two of America's greatest college football stars won their spurs at Wesleyan in the persons of "Greasy" Neale and Cliff Battles.

Taking the West Virginia Inter-Collegiate Tournament side of basketball, which began in 1935, Wesleyan has taken two championships and been runner-up team three times. This is the twelfth straight season that the tournament has been held in Buckhannon, and since 1940 Wesleyan has placed thirteen men on the All-Tournament Team.

Baseball saw such outstanding players as Robert Meyers, Jerry DeMarco and Mat Kuhn.

In tennis, Wesleyan had two fine players in David Grey and Joe Oldaker.

Track saw Joe Oldaker again and Ed Sullivan, who was never beaten in the two-mile race.

No history of Wesleyan could ever be mentioned, however, without placing "Cebe" Ross, "Mr. Wesleyan" himself, at the top of the list of great athletic leaders. "Cebe" both played and coached at Wesleyan. It was his coaching (1925-41 and 1946-53) which proved his greatness. The rugged schedules he endured will not be forgotten, nor will his never-ending efforts to develop the individual through physical education.

Turning now to the present era, it is significant to note the great expansion of the physical education program which has been planned so that it now reaches out to more students than ever before.

Within the last three years there has been a great acceleration in the intramural program; football, after a two-year rest, has been re-established; cross-country and spring track teams have re-appeared; we now have a competing tennis team; more and newer facilities have been added in the gymnasium; and basketball and baseball are more popular than ever.

Our sincere congratulations and commendations go to the Physical Education Department of West Virginia Wesleyan College.

“I GO TO PROVE MY SOUL”

. I go to prove my soul!
I see my way as birds their trackless way.
I shall arrive: what time, what circuit first,
I ask not: but unless God send his hail
Or blinding fireballs, sleet or stifling snow,
In some time, his good time, I shall arrive:
He guides me and the bird. In his good time!

Robert Browning: Paracelsus

In the days of ancient Greece when liberal arts education was just beginning, the pedagogue was the slave who took the young scholar by the hand and led him to school. Ever since the days of our earliest education, we have found those who act to guide and assist us in our educational training and preparation. In a real sense, our professors at West Virginia Wesleyan have provided the last guidance which education can give to those who graduate in 1955. From this point on their educational pathways will be made by their own efforts. If, as we hope it is true, liberal arts education is a lifelong process, those who graduate will continue to walk in discovery of truth and understanding of the world about them. To those who are leaving Wesleyan we say hail and farewell. May your journey be prosperous and successful.

Remember the pedagogues who taught you to walk in the way of learning.

A. A. SCHOOLCRAFT, Dean

PATHWAYS of WESLEYAN

The pathways of Wesleyan are as numerous as the ever-increasing host of students who come hither, over hill and dale, over land and sea, and over the long stretches of the years; who live, and labor, and learn together, on this campus beautiful, and wholesome, and enlightening; and then go hence to domiciles, and duties, and destinies as different as their points of origin, and as they themselves.

Of these converging, and intertwining, and diverging pathways, made, and in the making, and to be made, many have segments in common, while each has parts utterly unique. In this brief sketch, it will be possible to do no more than highlight some of the common-to-many segments, and spotlight some of the unique parts.

The pathways that converge on Wesleyan bridge a period (1890-1955) unparalleled in all time for perpetual, penetrating, and profound change. They come from the Victorian era, in which life was uncomplicated by autos, movies, aeroplanes, radios, television, and Communism, and from the ambiguous Atomic age, that may either usher in the true Golden Age of unprecedented peace and prosperity and progress, or sink humanity with all its achievements and aspirations, all its possibilities and promise, in eternal extinction—exceeding in a matter of minutes the cumulative folly, and tragedy, and carnage of the centuries.

Geographically, the pathways of Wesleyan come from the ends of the earth—from primitive South Sea islands, and from pastoral West Virginia hills; from Greece, where ancient civilization reached its

ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICES

The OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT serves as the main spoke in the Wesleyan wheel. MISS MARGARET DEAN, secretary, shares many of the duties of this office. Scheduling chapel and assembly programs is only one of the many responsibilities. All daytime telephone calls are handled through the switchboard operated by MRS. "BUNNY" MARRS.

After a hasty registration and attending several classes, a number of students find their way to the OFFICE OF THE DEAN and Dean Schoolcraft to change their courses of study. All appointments to see the dean are arranged by MISS SHIRLEY HYMES, secretary to the dean. JO ANN WILLIAMS, secretary, assists in recording grade reports and keeping the permanent record files.

Soon after arrival on Wesleyan's campus, students find occasion to visit MR. HEYWARD WILLIAMS, treasurer, who is always willing to accept their payment of fees for the school year in the TREASURER'S OFFICE. MISS REGINA KENNEY, assistant to the treasurer, issues receipts for the payment of bills and issues activities cards. MR. WILLIAM HICKS, business manager, has the responsibility of controlling the expenditures of the college. MRS. SHIRLEY DEAN is secretary to this office.

ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICES

The purpose of ADMISSIONS OFFICE is to solicit prospective Wesleyan students. Students conduct their first business with Wesleyan through MR. GEORGE SCHUM, director of admissions, who receives and checks applications for admission. With the assistance of MR. WILLIAM NEELEY, director of public relations; MISS ELLEN ROUSH, admissions counselor; and MISS JACKIE CAMPBELL, secretary; this office has the responsibility of selecting a student body that will make for a better Wesleyan community.

The function of the VICE PRESIDENT'S OFFICE, under the direction of MR. JAMES LING, is to raise funds for college improvement. At the present time, money is being raised for the building program with the hope that some more new buildings will be constructed on the campus in the near future. MISS JANE MARPLE, secretary, records all college requests and endowments.

The responsibility of the ALUMNI OFFICE is to keep all alumni informed of the most recent Wesleyan news. From this office the College Bulletin is published monthly and sent to all alumni to keep their interest stimulated in their Alma Mater. MR. JAMES STANSBURY, director of alumni affairs, helps to promote good alumni relationship. All news of alumni's whereabouts is recorded in the files kept by Mrs. June Flowers, secretary.

GUIDANCE AND COUNSELING

An air of friendliness and informality prevails in the office of DEAN NELLIE WILSON. Working to promote the best interests of Wesleyan women, she welcomes visits from faculty, parents, alumni, students and guests.

DEAN NELLIE WILSON

DR. FLORENCE SCHAPER

DR. FLORENCE SCHAPER, counseling director, welcomes all students to her office. She is always ready and willing to give help in study techniques, course planning and personal problems. Dr. Schaper acts as coordinator between the Dean of Women and the Dean of Men.

DEAN JOHN D. SHAVER is head of men's housing and counseling. His congenial personality is a definite drawing card for students with all types of problems, and his understanding and encouragement at trying times has proven valuable to many men students.

SENIOR CLASS

Row 1 B. HAMRICK, vice-president, M. SHAW, secretary. Row 2. L. JONES, president; H. FISHER, treasurer.

After four short years of dances, activities and study, the senior class leaves Wesleyan carrying with them many memories. Through four years of hard work, the once-bewildered freshmen are receiving their last good-bys and finally that long-sought goal, a diploma. With each diploma, each certificate of knowledge, is given something more—the spirit, loyalty, and enduring friendships which are West Virginia Wesleyan College.

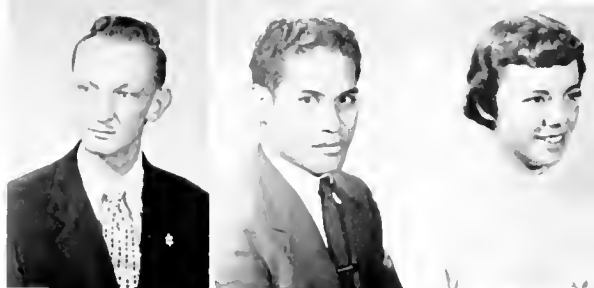

Senior class president, LEROY JONES hails from Millsboro, Delaware, and has participated in many organizations. Being president of the Methodist Student Movement, vice-president of Community Council, also in the Theta Chi fraternity, basketball and baseball teams, has kept him busy.

Vice-president BEVERLY HAMRICK from Lanett, Alabama, was president of Alpha Gamma Delta sorority, vice-president of Haught Literary Society and a member of the Conduct Committee of Community Council, Benzene Ring and International Relations Club. She was Homecoming queen her senior year.

MARGARET EDITH SHAW, senior class secretary, belongs to F.T.A., choir, band, M.S.M., and Fellowship Teams. She was senior house board representative, chairman of Wesleyantics Committee and a member of the Cultural Enrichment Committee.

Our star "track runner," HARRY FISHER is from Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. He is a member of the a capella choir and cross-country track team. Harry plans to enter seminary after graduation from college.

JUNIOR CLASS

It's three down and one to go for the class of '56. In a world increasing in meaning and value, the junior class found itself launched on a year of many new activities. No longer burdened with many preliminary requirements, these upperclassmen turned their attention to their respective fields of interest. Many became affiliated with honoraries; others edited the publications or held student government positions.

DAVID CUCINOTTA, as president of the junior class represented the class's fine interest in activities. As chairman of the educational affairs committee, business manager of this year's Murmurmontis and editor of the '53 student directory he was indeed a hard person to find at home.

Vice-president was PEGGY WRIGHT. Being very active, her activities included secretary of Delta Psi Kappa and Women's Recreational Association, Activities Committee and librarian of Alpha Gamma Delta.

PHYLLIS HILLMAN held the position of secretary for the class. As women's houseboard secretary, she was also active in Hought Literary Society, Alpha Gamma Delta sorority, freshmen counselor and Panhellenic as representative for Alpha Gamma Delta.

SOPHOMORE CLASS

The sophomores, now lost in college glory, have found recognition on campus. The second year of college having rolled around meant more familiar faces on campus, a final decision on a major, and a certain feeling of confidence and ease which had been absent during the first year. One more note on the keyboard of college life has been struck.

Leading the parade of sophomores, now well acquainted with campus life, was DAVE TRADER from Vienna, Maryland. A member of the Benzene Ring, M.S.M., basketball team and publications committee, Dave also was editor of the student directory this year.

RAY MILLER from Arnold, Pennsylvania, took the role of vice-president. He was kept quite busy with M.S.M. council, chapel and assembly committee, choir and Phi Sigma Epsilon fraternity.

Giving occasional wise words of wisdom was NANCY WALTON, secretary, from Oak Hill, West Virginia. Nancy's major field of study is religious education. Her activities include Alpha Gamma Delta sorority, Delta Psi Kappa, M.S.M., Fellowship Team leader and advertising on the Pharos. She was homecoming queen attendant for the sophomore class.

The millions of the sophomore class were in the hands of MARJORIE McCULLOUGH, treasurer, from Bronx, New York. Having a library workshop, Marjorie also finds time for being an M.S.M. council member, Fellowship Team leader and member of Playshop and Alpha Psi Omega.

Standing. M. McCULLOUGH, treasurer, N. WALTON, secretary; R. MILLER, vice-president; D. TRADER, president.

FRESHMAN CLASS

The yearling freshmen that swarmed into Wesleyan last September have now won their battle ribbons and are proud of a successful first year of study, social participation, study, fun, and more study. They now have their roots firmly set in the Wesleyan spirit and tradition and are eagerly looking forward to their next year.

The freshman class "Replica of the Wesleyan Pharos" placed second in the float parade voting at Homecoming. The class was active all during the year and held their own in scholastic achievement.

RONNIE TALKINGTON, freshman class president, hails from Clarksburg where he graduated from Washington-Irving High School, was active on Fellowship Teams, and played guard on the junior varsity basketball team. Ronnie is a pre-ministerial student but is undecided as to his major field of study. He is also a waiter in the men's dining hall.

OSCAR STRIEBY, vice-president, comes from Okonoko. He is a hard-working veteran of World War II, and as yet is undecided as to future work.

The class secretary, ROSIE WALTON, of Oak Hill, is a physical education major and is active on Fellowship Teams, and is a member of the "Bobkittens" and Women's Recreation Association.

The keeper of the class millions, JEAN RAWSON, is a member of Alpha Gamma sorority and Women's Recreation Association. She is a major in business and education. In February she was chosen as K.A.'s "Belle of the Ball." Her home is in Parkersburg.

HOMECOMING

The sky was overcast and winter weather seemed to be approaching Buckhannon for this long-awaited weekend. Regardless of the weather, on Friday afternoon, October 29, 1954, Wesleyan's campus was flooded with guests—new to some, but not to all. Yes, alumni, visitors, and friends were returning for the annual Homecoming celebrations. Once again, the friendly atmosphere of our campus prevailed.

Lovely Beverly Hamrick began her role as queen over the Homecoming festivities as she received her crown from Coach Dave Reemsnyder on Friday evening before Wesleyantics. In the charming court aiding the queen were Corena Scott, senior attendant; Barbara Maxwell, junior attendant; Nancy Walton, sophomore attendant; and Kay Rider, freshman attendant. Practically all campus organizations participated in Wesleyantics with the exception of the sororities and fraternities. This was the first year that Wesleyantics was not competitive.

A new event was introduced this year during the weekend. Mrs. McAllester and the home economics girls sponsored a breakfast Saturday morning for all alumnae home economics majors and minors in the Home Ec. Cottage.

Dave Reemsnyder crowns Beverly Hamrick, Queen.

Winning float—Alpha Gamma Delta

Freezing at the Homecoming Game.

In spite of the light snow on Saturday morning, the gala parade moved on. Alpha Gamma Delta sorority won first prize in the float parade using as the theme of their float, "Ar Gyles'll Sock Em." Second place was won by the freshman class who used a replica of the Wesleyan Pharos.

Following the parade, the annual barbeque was held in the gymnasium. It was served by faculty members and girls from the home economics department.

That afternoon, the Bobcats played host to Bridgewater college from Virginia in their spirited Homecoming tilt which was fought to a 6-6 tie.

The climax of the weekend was the "Autumn Leaves" formal Homecoming Dance. Another Homecoming was over too soon, but the fond memories linked with it still remain.

MEANWHILE

BACK AT the RANCH HOUSE

And the battle's on!

Variety's the spice of life

Who teaches that?

There are those on campus who know where the above phrase originates; and a few who know where the phrase can actually be seen. "Those who know" are the fellows who live way down yonder in the college units. These men are mostly all sophomores, juniors, and seniors, and many of them have workshops in the two dining halls on campus.

This is the first year that single men have been housed in these units which were constructed by Federal Housing for the use of married veterans after World War II. Because of Wesleyan's ever-increasing enrollment, part of these units have been given over to housing for men while the remaining units are still for the use of married students.

The single men here have made order out of chaos and on the whole they are to be commended for their work in creating a homey atmosphere in their respective units. They enjoy living in the units, and, what is more important, they find the home atmosphere very conducive to serious studying.

PANHELLENIC COUNCIL

Panhellenic Council is the organization of actives and pledges of the national sororities on campus. This council strives to encourage sororities to work together as one group. Co-operation is a "must." Panhellenic is composed of two representatives from each sorority, the senior members being officers. Serving as president was Helen Canterbury; vice-president, Bobbie Jo Wuerz; and secretary-treasurer, Corena Scott. Junior Panhellenic representatives were Anne Crane, Phyllis Hillman, and Barbara Maxwell.

Panhellenic prescribes all procedures for rushing. During the year, they sponsor two teas, opening both first and second semester rushing. In November, all the girls attended the Panhellenic workshop, where various problems concerning all groups were discussed and analysed. December found the girls Christmas caroling.

The Panhellenic Creed is as follows: We, the fraternity undergraduate members, stand for good scholarship, for guarding of good health, for whole-hearted co-operation with our college's ideals for student life, for maintenance of fine social standards, and for the serving, to the best of our ability, of our college community. Good college citizenship as a preparation for good citizenship in the larger world of alumnae days is the ideal that shall guide our chapter activities. We, the fraternity women of America, stand for preparation for service through the character building inspired in the close contact and deep friendship of fraternity life. To us, fraternity life is not the enjoyment of special privileges, but an opportunity to prepare for wide and wise human service.

The purposes of the West Virginia Wesleyan College Panhellenic Council are: To maintain on a high plane fraternity life and interfraternity relations within our college. To further fine intellectual accomplishments and sound scholarship. To co-operate with the college administration in the maintenance of high social standards. To be a forum for the discussion of questions of interest to the college and fraternity world.

INTERFRATERNITY COUNCIL

The Interfraternity Council was first founded on Wesleyan's campus in the fall of 1953 under the auspices of the Community Council. Bob Call was the chairman of the constitutional committee. The original council was made up of one representative from each fraternity.

According to the preamble to the constitution, the purpose of IFC is to set policies for fraternity rushing and pledging, to act as a governing board to settle interfraternity policies, and to plan interfraternity social functions—with its ultimate purpose being the unification of interfraternity relationships.

The Interfraternity Council for this year consists of the president and a representative from each fraternity on campus. The establishment of definite pledging and rushing rules for all fraternities was one of the council's major accomplishments for this year.

The outstanding activity for the IFC was the planning and carrying out of the Interfraternity Dance in November. Each of the four fraternities pitched in to make this one of the biggest dances of the year. Music was furnished by the "Collegians."

Future plans for IFC include more interfraternity social functions and the ultimate goal of creating a more homogeneous attitude among the fraternities on campus.

ALPHA SIGMA PHI

Of the 75 chapters of Alpha Sigma Phi scattered over the nation from Maine to California, and Florida to Washington, Beta Nu chapter at West Virginia Wesleyan College ranks 54th in size. It was installed here on the campus in 1933. In previous years it was known as the football fraternity, because so many of Wesleyan's football "greats" were Alpha Sigs.

Recently, however, the fraternity has been plagued by extremely hard luck. The Korean War saw many of the brothers in the service all over the world, many of whom will return to Wesleyan. Though small in number, they are a closely knit group, and are trying with renewed effort to reorganize.

That's a float?

This year Beta Nu chapter pledged eight men and participated in the Homecoming parade. It is sincerely hoped that the strong, loyal members now active, can bring the fraternity back to full active participation on the campus.

Their primary interest at present is getting a new house, which they are attempting to do. The boys are planning for a big future and are working earnestly to insure it.

The Alpha Sigs made it almost a weekly ritual of visiting other Alpha Sigma Phi chapters on other campuses. The boys got together most every weekend and made trips to West Virginia University, Davis and Elkins College, Penn State, Columbia University, and American University. Since most of the Alpha Sigs hail from New York and surrounding areas, a farewell dance and party in Payeoli, Pennsylvania is planned for around May 30.

Alpha Sigma Phi's officers were: president, Frank Floyd of Buckhannon; vice-president, Bob Chatfield of Bloomington, Indiana; secretary, Don Andrews of Brooklyn, New York; and treasurer, Jules Metroka of New York, New York.

Remember the time the Alpha Delta Pi's and Theta Chi's scheduled a wiener roast the same night early in September? Then in October, the Alpha Deltas held their informal party at the Scow and the girls journeyed to "The Black Diamond Night Club" for their formal rush party. The A D Pi's were very proud of their fourteen new pledges: Nadine Glass, Marianna Young, Mary Burton, Ina Jean Lawson, Georgetta Decker, Charlotte Agey, Carolyn Lewis, Carol Boyer, Harriet Aveyard, Jenny Lynn West, Peggy Jo Morton, Annabelle Muse, Peggy Austin, and Carol Ann Wilson.

A D Pi Homecoming Beauties

On the stairway to A D Pi

Bring on the entertainment!

Think of the fun the girls had redecorating and refurnishing their sorority room. By Homecoming, the room was completed and to celebrate, an open house followed the big game. Alpha Delta Pi well represented the Homecoming Queen's Court with Corena Scott as senior attendant and Barbara Maxwell as junior attendant.

In December, the Alpha Delts held a Christmas party in their new sorority room at which time they wrapped presents for orphans. Then there was the time actives and pledges attended a basketball game together to help cheer the team to victory. Also in this month, the girls initiated two new patronesses and held a "Benefit Party."

It was a big day when the A D Pi's initiated all fourteen of their pledges. The banquet and the February dance created quite a bit of enthusiasm. Also on their social calendar was the pledge dance, "Retreat," and the big "Black and White Diamond" formal, constituting their spring formal. The girls of Alpha Delta Pi have had a very progressive and profitable year they will never forget.

KAPPA ALPHA

Kappa Alpha began the school year by redecorating the interior of their new house. Every room was repainted and four new rooms were added to accommodate the twenty-one boys living in the house. With the house "ship-shape," KA turned their concentration towards extra-curricular activities. Three excellent teams were entered in the intramural football contest.

Pledging was uppermost in the minds of the KA's during October. They received nineteen new pledges and their total was boosted to twenty-six pledges and sixteen actives. Homecoming was the big event of the month and Kappa Alpha copped first prize for house decorations.

Rebels on the march!

All activities were cancelled during the month of November because of the untimely death of pledge William Mead in an automobile accident.

A combined Dixie Ball-Twenty-fifth Anniversary Dance was held over the weekend of December 3, 4, and 5. The weekend began with a house party on Friday night, and continued with a parade on Saturday and the dance on Saturday night. A tea was held Sunday afternoon in honor of the Belle of the Ball, Miss Jean Rawson. According to tradition, the KA's serenaded the girls' dormitories and the houses of the alumni in town with Christmas carols.

The KA Rebels won the intramural volleyball crown in January with an outstanding record of nine wins and no losses. The KA's ceased all activities for the rest of the month due to final examinations.

On the fourth of February, a party was held celebrating the first anniversary of the KA's in their new house. A second semester rush party was held and the fraternity pledged many new boys.

March elections were held and the new officers assumed their duties. Kappa Alpha held a house party with the theme of St. Patrick's Day, and as usual, the party was a huge success.

April found the boys making great preparations for their annual Sweetheart dance. The new sweetheart was elected and Helen Canterbury, last year's sweetheart, passed on the KA pin to the new elect.

Kappa Alpha entered in the May Day sing and many of the boys' parents arrived for the festivities. Kappa Alpha lost John Anderson, vice-president, and Joseph Patterson, secretary, by way of graduation.

How proud the Alpha Gams were of their own Beverly Hamrick as Homecoming Queen and Nancy Walton as Sophomore Attendant! The float, "Ar-gyle's 'il Sock'em," took first place in the parade. On November 30, they were awarded the Panhellenic scholarship trophy. December brought the annual Christmas party at the Scow. The girls and their dates visited "Hernando's Hide-away" in January, where they danced to the music of the Collegians.

February breezed in, giving them three new pledges: Ruth Grose, Jeanette Hedrick, and Phyllis Hogsett. "Back to School" the alums, patronesses, actives, and pledges went to a get-together at the Baptist church. Initiation and the "Feast of Roses" highlighted the year. April showers brought May flowers and also the annual spring formal. International reunion day completed the rainy month. Having participated in the May Day Sing and finding the year drawing to a close, the alumnae breakfast and initiation constituted the final activity of the year. An eventful and exciting year!

PHI SIGMA EPSILON

The brothers of Phi Sigma Epsilon returned to the campus this fall to find themselves proud owners of the highest scholastic rating of all fraternities. They began the year by initiating Ken Symes, Al Simon, and Peter Tobing. The Phi Sig quartet, composed of Cal Sheasley, Herb Costolo, Bryce Hatch and Ken Symes, provided entertainment for the rush party. The twenty-one pledges constituted the largest pledge class in Phi Sig history.

The Phi Sigs entered the Homecoming activities with a float "Our Eleven Rolls Again." Participation in intramurals included basketball, volleyball, and softball.

Dreamer's Holiday

Levi Miller spoke to them during Christian Emphasis Week and was thoroughly enjoyed. The fraternity acquired its first trophy at the Sadie Hawkins Day event with its entry, "Dog-patch Armory." The December Christmas dance at the Elks Club proved a success, with the Collegians providing the music.

The pledge party at Mr. and Mrs. McAllester's home, provided loads of fun. In February, the Phi Sigs initiated fifteen new men bringing the active membership to the highest since its founding. Among the newly initiated members was James Stansbury, also Faculty Advisor. New fraternity pins were approved and the first jeweled pins were worn by Lowell Hackett and Howie Miller.

The spring dance highlighted the month of April. The Phi Sigs once again participated in the May Day Sing. Phi Sigma Epsilon has had an active and progressive year.

The Christmas party for underprivileged children highlighted December activities.

At this affair, "Big Sisters" surprised their "Little Sisters." Province President Mrs. Harold E. Harkins visited for guidance and counseling. Climaxing the year's activities was the Rose Formal, THE dance of the year, when couples danced under colored lights to orchestral music. Delta Gamma Chapter entered "The Eagles are for the Birds" in the Homecoming parade. Having donned jeans and plaid shirts Theta Chi's and their dates enjoyed the "Circle Bar-X Ranch" costume party. The engagement of Joe Talbott to Barbara Maxwell constituted the first serenade of the year.

Theta Chi's intramural football team did well this year and earned second place. Sadie Hawkins Day found none other than Don Hancock as L'il Abner. Leonard Davis having pinned Claire Pauley, the Theta Chi's again found themselves singing at Agnes Howard Hall. Highlighting first semester's activities was the "Monte Carlo Party," December's party-of-the-month. The ground covered with a blanket of snow, Shockey Cadle and the boys serenaded Shirley Kessler. The fifth anniversary ball, "Parisian Nights," comprised January's social event.

February brought a surprise birthday party for their beloved "Ma." The Theta Chi's just couldn't complete their year without a serenade in the rain! And this for an alum, Pat Spiegel, who pinned Phyllis Hillman. Initiation and spring rushing were well under way. The serenade for Jane Peters, pinned to Dick Moisan, was named the "Eskimo Serenade." With the winds of March, a costume party and spring vacation in Florida blew in. All enjoyed the annual spring formal in April. Having entered in the May Day Sing, the Theta Chi's drew a busy and exciting year to a close.

MEN'S DORM LIFE

The fellows who live in the men's dorm find their living quarters almost as pleasant and comfortable as the rooms they left at home. By the time they have unpacked their belongings and added their own ingenious touches of interior decoration, each room has acquired a definite individualistic atmosphere.

If we were to sit in one of the rooms for a short time we might suddenly hear someone bellow "you clown!" And stepping into the hall we would see some reluctant individual being dragged toward the showers. This usually happens to those who "step off the dock" and get themselves pinned or engaged.

And if we were to look into another room we'd find a group of fellows sprawled on the furniture having a red-hot bull session. In the next room the radio is blaring and the owner is slumped over a book open on the desk, a frown creasing his brow.

In the evening some of the boys get together for an impressive and inspiring prayer group in one of the rooms. It is with a feeling of inner peace and good will that they finally crawl beneath the covers and close their eyes on another day at Wesleyan.

Burning the midnight oil!

Harry: "Been trying to get you for an hour."

"A woman's work is never done and parties keep us up past one."

WOMEN'S DORM LIFE

Life in a women's residence hall was not the most peaceful existence on campus. One could flee to her room to seek a haven from the noisy activities of a party, only to find the party was in her room. Corridor pals were always running in to visit.

There were certain hours that were known as 'quiet hours' when it was possible for a gal to retire to her room for study without the glare of a radio. But these hours did not prevail twenty-four hours a day, and 'noisy hours' were spent eating, gabbling, 'partying,' socializing and eating.

Through idle chatter, however, many new friends were made.

When the dinner-bell rang, all the girls dashed to the drawing room and exchanged the happenings and news of the day before going to the dining hall.

Even with the duties of dorm life such as laundering with the automatic washers, struggling to find an ironing board or trying to keep their rooms presentable, every Wesleyan woman has had many happy times living in the dorm. She will cherish her memories of dorm life forever.

HOUSING STAFF

Keeping the girls mentally happy is one of the many responsibilities of MISS NELLIE WILSON, head resident of Agnes Howard Hall. Gracious, poised, charming and thoughtful can only partially express the character personified in our head resident of Agnes Howard Hall. Miss Wilson is a perfect hostess to many visitors and guests. Through her friendliness and cordiality all girls are made to feel 'at home away from home.'

Vim, vigor and vitality explain the effervescent personality of MRS. JULIA HAROLD, house mother of Agnes Howard Hall. To most of the girls she is better known as "Mom," and is an efficient 'mother' to all her girls in the dorm. Her duties as a house mother are manifold, such as being a combination nurse, handyman and comforter.

MRS. JESSE WOLVERTON is the new head resident of the girls' dorm at 68 College Avenue. She has given much of her time and experiences in making "68" a much finer and more complete dorm in itself. Striving to develop better womanhood and citizenship within the girls, Mrs. Wolverton listens to all the girls' problems and can usually find a solution worth trying.

HOUSE STAFF

With the poise and dignity befitting MRS. MARGARET GUSSLER, all the fellows in the Men's Residence Hall find a pleasant, cheerful head resident. With her jovial personality she believes that in order to appreciate life to the utmost you should live it to the fullest. Mrs. Gussler takes great pride in all her boys who make her life happier in many respects. She adds a social and inspirational atmosphere to varied and interesting incidents which occasionally occur.

The personal stimulation gained through associations with MRS. JULIA HEREFORD, head resident of 49 Florida Street, aids the fellows in fostering a greater appreciation and pride in their dormitory. To encourage cooperation and friendship among the boys is one of the many responsibilities of Mrs. Hereford. Many exciting and interesting experiences make life in this small men's dorm complete.

Every semester, house dues are paid by each woman living in the dorms. House Board uses this fund to finance their expenses resulting from the purchase of Homecoming and Christmas decorations, the provision of magazines for the reading room, and the furnishing of an ample supply of food for dorm parties.

The functions of the House Board are numerous, but its main purpose is to bring harmony to the halls of Agnes Howard and 68 College Avenue.

FRESHMEN

COUNSELLORS

Each spring seven or eight upperclassmen are chosen by Miss Nellie Wilson to act as counsellors or aids to the incoming freshmen girls.

The purpose of the counsellors is to help the new students to become orientated to their new college situation.

EXAM BLUES

Everyone has heard of the 3 R's—readin', ritin', and 'rithmetic. But equally important are the 3 N's—nerves, no-doz, and notes. These three N's seem to mysteriously spring up at the end of each semester. The first signs of the "3-N season" are half-closed eyes and nodding heads during classes. The next sign is the appearance of lights shining forth from all dorm windows into the wee hours of the morning. How many students make the resolution—"This semester I'm going to study every night so I won't have to cram at the end." Famous last words!

Next comes out the neatly typed sheets of paper stating the times of the exams—and such remarks as these can be heard floating around: "Oh, heavens, I have three tests on Saturday!" or "Did you see what that awful Professor So-and-So did—put our test at 8:00 in the morning!" Many of the students feel exactly like one anonymous person who once expressed his thoughts thusly—"School examinations are formidable even to the best prepared; for the greatest fool may ask more than the wisest man can answer."

The next sign of the "3-N season" are the 3 N's themselves, which appear during the last week. Suddenly you're in the midst of tests, and just as suddenly you find yourself through. Now for relaxation. But just a minute! Did you realize that there are only 126 days until this starts all over again? Oh, well—where did you hide the no-nod pills?

THE "SNOWBALL" DANCE

Soft lights—sweet music—a night long remembered!

Festive touches of sparkle and glitter made the Snowball formal a land of enchantment. The doorway was covered with greenery and bright red poinsettias. Individual yuletide centerpieces on the tables cast a shadowy haze on the room making it look like a dreamer's paradise. The main point of interest was the huge Christmas tree with its bright lights and gay decorations in the center of the dance floor. Vincent Moats and his orchestra were seated on a bandstand backed by a huge piece of sheet music scintillating with the musical notes of "White Christmas."

Santa Claus visited the dance early in the evening, leaving for each girl a carnation corsage. We girls really looked like "belles of the ball" then.

As the couples swayed to the enchanting music, colorful streamers were strewn toward the tree to the strains of "Auld Lang Syne." Then two huge bells, which were hidden by the false ceiling until the appointed time, opened and let their precious cargo of balloons float down to the eager hands below.

The evening of enchantment is gone, but the pressed corsages, programs, and memory are ours to keep.

CHRISTMAS

Christmas is here.

The spirit of Christmas unrolled a panorama of gala events. The Christmas spirit engulfed everyone as if by magic they heard the familiar "Merry Christmas" echoing in the cold December air. Formal dances and holiday parties contributed their share to the festivities. The clear voices of several groups of carolers could be heard in the stillness of the evening as they resounded across the campus. The choir presented "The Messiah" followed by the traditional tree-lighting ceremony in Agnes Howard Hall.

As vacation time drew nearer, the undertone of expectation intensified and students began making plans for their homeward journey. As the peace of Christmas fell upon Buckhannan, a few echoing good-byes could be heard, and then Wesleyan was quiet.

"Comfort ye my people."

See what Santa brought us!

When a group of budding young artists—or students just interested in this phase of cultural enrichment—gather in Loar Hall on Wednesday evenings, a regular meeting of the Student Art Guild takes place. Guided by Prof. Fred Messersmith, Jean Allen as president, Ed Butler as vice-president, and Kay Evans as secretary-treasurer, the group this year carried out many projects. Some of these were trips, painting the benches wicker-brown in the art room, backdrops for the Snowball and May Day dances, and the annual spring art exhibit honoring the graduating seniors.

Many a bare wall became part of a homey room away from home as a result of the SAG picture rental campaign. At the beginning of the first and second semesters, prints of famous paintings were hung in the Ad Building prior to the rental.

Remember those strange contraptions that were found hanging from the ceiling of the second floor hallway of the Administration Building one morning? They were not Marsian lie-detectors or ornamental electric eyes used to direct couples to class rooms before the hourly bell rang—but mobiles. These colorful and artistic creations were Masterpieces of the Week constructed by two Art Guild members. At every meeting the students chose an outstanding work of an art student worthy of being placed in the case in the Ad Building. To get that favorite painting in was quite an honor.

In October the Art Guild members were hosts to George B. Keester, a watercolor artist from Annapolis, Maryland. Following an exhibition of his work in Loar Hall, he was honored with a reception in the Memorial Room by SAG students.

Remember the class in Art Depreciation taught at Wesleyantics? This was an example of realism, or was it humanism? Art Guild members portrayed well-known paintings.

The Beaux Arts Ball stands out as the big activity of the Student Art Guild. Who can forget those weird, fantastic costumes and decorations that accented the only masquerade ball of the year?

BAND

This year was a good year for the Wesleyan band. Under the capable direction of Dr. C. Buell Agey, and with the help of drum major Evertsen, there were performances at games and an assembly concert in November. The band participated at most of the home football and basketball games and really added a lot to school spirit.

The beginning of the school year found the band practicing hard to prepare for football season and the Homecoming weekend. At Homecoming the band marched in the parade making a very nice picture of orange and black uniforms and shining instruments. At the game that afternoon the band presented a well executed half-time show in spite of the snow and mud on the field.

There were approximately thirty-five playing members in the band this year. During basketball season Dr. Agey organized a group to play for some of the home games. He also helped to organize our well-known dance band, "The Collegians."

The band members surely had fun working together and were rather disappointed that the plans for going to some away games didn't work out. It seemed that inclement weather always interfered with the plans. Well, maybe next time. . . .

The high strutters of the Wesleyan Band were: K. RIDER, G. McDONALD, D. KEYSER, R. EVERTSEN, J. BELCHER, N. DERRY.

CHOIR

The West Virginia Wesleyan A Cappella Choir, consisting of fifty-three members, was selected through audition by the director, Prof. Robert E. Shafer, and the choir officers: Robert Coker, Robert Call, Ralph Pettie, and Maureen Hannah. A tour choir of thirty-eight voices was selected from the regular choir in the fall. This tour group traversed the Charleston route for three days, giving eleven performances. In the spring, this tour choir covered the Beckley area, giving ten programs in four days.

On tour the choir sang at Methodist churches throughout the local conference and at high schools where the choir had an opportunity to sing secular as well as sacred numbers. Special groups and talented individuals were featured, including a marimba player, a girls' trio, an octet, and a chorus of waiters made up of choir members who were actually waiters in the college dining hall.

The choir also sang regularly at the Tuesday morning chapel services, for special events such as Christian Emphasis Week and Baccalaureate. The Christmas portion of Handel's Messiah was presented at the traditional Christmas choir program, and Faure's Requiem was performed with Wesleyan's orchestra on Good Friday.

The last big event for the school was a choir party given in honor of the director and the graduating seniors.

INSIDE THE LIBRARY

The worth of any institution of higher learning may be measured in terms of its library. Wesleyan has reason to be proud of its modern and well-equipped Annie Merner Pfeiffer Library, which now contains more than 41,000 volumes. The ever-increasing circulation of books and periodicals among the students is proof enough of its value to our campus.

Outstanding in the history of our new library was this year's Founders' Day dedication of portraits of past presidents of Wesleyan. These portraits now hang in Kresge Foundation Reference Room.

STORY

STUDENT CENTER of WESLEYAN

Looking for a place to release your tense and pent-up emotions? No doubt you found the answer to this need more than once in the relaxing and informal atmosphere of the SCOW where you enjoyed a social chat with your friends and supplemented your regular dorm diet with a Coke and potato chips.

With your hunger satisfied and your tensions relaxed, you probably remembered that your professor told you to get a new book for his course. The clerk in the book store was eager to wait on you, but there were so many students in line that a game of ping pong sounded more interesting. What could be a better way to spend your rare moments of free time?

Enthusiasm built up during football and basketball games was further expelled at the SCOW, especially when the famous "Colle-gians" were being featured for after-game dancing. It was difficult trying to work your way through the noisy crowd to reach the snack bar—but that just made it all the more fun.

The SCOW committee for this year deserves a lot of recognition for making all these activities available to the student body. The committee was also in charge of the arrangements for most of the "all-campus" functions.

Every business needs a manager, and the SCOW is no exception. This position is capably filled by MRS. ETHEL VAUGHN. Little do we realize the tremendous responsibility of managing and maintaining such conveniences as the book store and the snack bar.

Mrs. Vaughn has kept things running smoothly through another successful year for the Student Center of Wesleyan.

If anyone has an ache or a cold, MRS. MADGE MARTIN, our college nurse, can always find a remedy. The nurse's office might well be called a stockroom of cold pills and nose drops—for which there always seems to be an increased demand in the spring.

DR. ROBERT CHAMBERLAIN, director of the Student Health Service, makes certain that Wesleyan students are healthy students. Each year, physical examinations are conducted for all upperclassmen.

Seriously ill patients are always assured of receiving prompt medical attention from our campus doctor.

COMMUNITY COUNCIL

As our constitution states: "We, the members of the campus community of West Virginia Wesleyan College, recognizing the need for an inclusive and efficient form of college government wherein students, faculty, and administration work side by side, do institute this constitution and dedicate ourselves to the realization of the objectives of our college through its faithful execution."

The council consists of three seniors, three juniors, two sophomores, and two freshmen representing the student body. There are representatives from the faculty, the college president, the dean of college and the deans of students.

The community council has charge of all activities during the Homecoming and May Day weekend celebrations. The council functions through committees in charge of the various areas of campus life. These areas are: 1—Awards, 2—Conduct, 3—Cultural Enrichment, 4—Fraternities, 5—House Government, 6—Publications, 7—Religious Activities, 8—Social Activities, 9—Student Center, 10—N.S.A. Campus Committee, and 11—Educational Affairs.

The officers of the present Community Council are: president, David Sterling; vice-president, Leroy Jones; secretary, Ann Moss.

CULTURAL ENRICHMENT COMMITTEE ENGAGES SUPERB ENTERTAINMENT

Right. DR. FRANZ J. POLGAR, mental wizard, who appeared in Atkinson Chapel November 5.

Probably the outstanding attraction, and certainly one of the most interesting programs of the year, was presented on November 5, when the Cultural Enrichment Committee brought to Wesleyan's stage Dr. Franz J. Polgar, nationally and internationally known hypnotist and mentalist. Dr. Polgar's program, "Miracles of the Mind," featured telepathy, memory feats, and hypnosis, his basic theory being that the mind can be developed like the muscles of the body. He held his audience spell-bound throughout the two and one-half hour performance.

Music lovers had a special treat in March, when the Artists and Symphony Assemblies Division of the Virginia Symphony Orchestra presented to Wesleyan students its Harp Trio, consisting of a harp, a flute, and a cello. It cannot be denied that the music of the masters, such as was heard in this program, is an essential part of every cultural enrichment program.

Another March attraction was the address in world affairs as given by Dr. S. E. Gerard Priestly, a leader in the field of international education and distinguished authority on international and human relations. In addition Dr. Priestly is an author, historian, lecturer and world traveler from 1948 to 1953.

Carl Holty, noted lecturer of the Fine Arts, was presented by the Cultural Enrichment Committee for a two-day program, April 18 and 19.

THE PHAROS

Note-book and pencil, a barrage of never-ending questions, a rush to meet that deadline—it all adds up to make a hard-working reporter for the Wesleyan Pharos.

Editor, HELEN CANTERBURY
Business Manager, JIM ZORNES

Under the leadership of Carol Ann Marshall, advisor; Helen Canterbury, editor; and Jim Zornes and Jack Rollo, business managers, the staff has worked hard this year to make the PHAROS a better representative of the students. Serving as advertising manager was Nancy Walton; news editor, Judy Kerwood; feature editor, Greg Lessig; and circulation manager, Mary Ann Walker.

For Homecoming, the PHAROS kept in tune with the rest of the campus by "going special" with a two-color, eight-page issue. An historical review of Wesleyan was told in features and pictures, along with current Homecoming and activity news. Many new-type features were also initiated during the year.

"Gridiron Greg" and "Rebounds," by Greg Lessig, led in column interest, keeping Bobcat fans informed in Wesleyan's sports world. Bringing many chuckles to everyone was our friend "Gerry the Germ," Bill Trembath. Other columns of special interest were "Wesleyanswers," by Jean Greer, and Greek News and Club News, both contributed by the organizations.

THE MURMURMONTIS

Creating a yearbook that everyone will appreciate and admire, and which, at the same time, has been paid for in full, is no easy task—ask anyone who's actually worked on one.

Two people you might ask and who certainly should know, are Ev and Dave Cucinotta, the editor-in-chief and business manager of the 1955 MURMURMONTIS. Ev's task was to see that everything was done as planned and to check and double-check all the work done. Dave is the man who carried the business contracts and "took after" every man with a dollar in his pocket.

Two persons who did outstanding work for this MURMURMONTIS, and who put in many hours of work, were Marilyn Wickerham, literary editor, and Carol Ann Marshall, the publications advisor.

The start of the MURMURMONTIS was delayed considerably by the lack of dark room facilities for our campus photographer, Dick Evans. Progress, however, will not be denied, and it is hoped that the MURMURMONTIS at which you are looking will rank high with respect to all previous yearbooks.

The Methodist Student Movement, operating under a new constitutional plan, has carried on the entire religious program at Wesleyan this year.

The Movement is headed by an executive council of 13 members and is composed of eight standing committees—fellowship teams, life service fellowship, morning programs, evening programs, vespers, Christian Emphasis Week, service projects, and recreation.

The first special event on the M.S.M. calendar was the Oak Grove vesper service given for freshmen during orientation week.

One of the most important undertakings of the Methodist Student Movement is Christian Emphasis Week, which has come to mean a great deal to the religious life of Wesleyan students. Bishop Fred P. Corson, resident Bishop of the Philadelphia area, was the main speaker of this year's event and headed a list of fine resource persons.

Social activities included the annual Hobo Party, a Christmas party for underprivileged children, and a get-together for prospective students who come to our campus for the spring scholarship tests.

Davis and Elkins Student Christian Association visited the Wesleyan group February 20 and an exchange program was held. A supper, prepared in foreign style, was served to the combined groups.

Although this year has been an experimental one for the organization, the programs have proved very successful.

M. S. M. Executive Council

FELLOWSHIP TEAMS

The name of this organization connotes the main objective it desires to obtain, that being fellowship with the youth with which the teams come in contact. As a team you are working together and this closer association fosters the spirit of fellowship within the group—which, in turn, projects to the youth you are endeavoring to help.

A team is composed of five Wesleyan college students who attend surrounding rural churches in the Buckhannon area every Sunday night. The only prerequisite for being a team member is that you must be a Christian in all your activities in school, home, and church. The greater the diversity in future goals among the team members, the more appeal the team has. Your responsibility to the church is great, and with sincerity in your work, coupled with a desire to learn as well as teach, success is imminent.

This year has been a very active one in fellowship teamwork. The success of these teams could not have been realized if the members had not sacrificed their time, efforts, and energy to meet the challenges that the different churches offered. Under the able guidance of Rev. Donald Flynn, faculty advisor, the teams have functioned smoothly as a unit working for a common goal.

We have seen order triumph over chaos, and we have seen the true value of preparation. To see a strong Methodist Youth Fellowship materialize as a result of our earnest efforts is indeed an exciting experience, and it is the greatest satisfaction that a team member can experience. All of us who have been team members this year have worked hard to strengthen and unite our Christian ties, and in doing this, we have strengthened our own personal affiliations with God.

RELIGIOUS EMPHASIS WEEK

Religion is a very vital part in every student's life. Each year a week is devoted for special emphasis on religion. Although we have many religious activities during the year, this week offered a time for the crystallization of our thoughts and made us more aware of the need of Christianity in our world today.

Religious Emphasis Week this year was November 8-11. The theme for the week was, "How About Tomorrow." Bishop Fred P. Corson from the Philadelphia Conference was the guest speaker. He contributed many enlightening thoughts during the chapel periods and during informal discussion groups. Several resource leaders were invited who acted as aides to the main speaker.

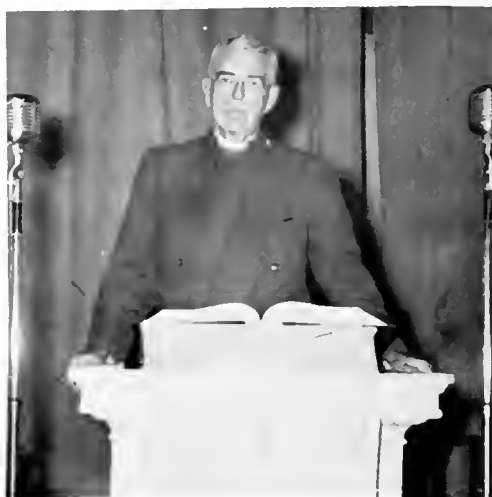

They lived in the dormitories with the students and were very cooperative in aiding the students in any way possible. The resource leaders this year were: Mrs. Leonard Hoover, wife of Dr. Leonard Hoover, pastor of the Asbury Church, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania; Mr. Levi Miller, executive secretary of the Washington Conference of the Methodist Church; Rev. Ross Evans, pastor of the Methodist Church in Spenser, West Virginia, and Rev. Charles Godwin, assistant pastor at the First Methodist Church in Clarksburg, West Virginia.

Some of our own faculty who also helped with our week as resource leaders were: Mrs. Parker, Mrs. McAllester, and Rev. and Mrs. Sidney Davis.

Topic discussions were on marriage, world affairs, and the segregation problem. Informal discussion groups were held each evening in the dormitories where many thoughts were exchanged among the students.

Religious Emphasis Week was brought to an impressive close with a communion service on Thursday evening at the First Methodist Church.

HAUGHT LITERARY SOCIETY

Founded in 1924 in honor of Dr. Thomas Haught, Dean Emeritus of the College, the purpose of the Haught Literary Society is to promote interest in the literary arts on campus. At a formal candlelighting service held in the drawing room of Agnes Howard Hall, twelve girls pledged themselves to this purpose.

The next week these same twelve girls participated in an informal initiation and could be seen wearing a quotation on their backs carrying a bag of Haught "kisses" for the old members.

Membership in the organization is limited to sixteen girls who have shown an active interest in literature. Each spring new members are elected to replace graduating seniors.

Each member is responsible for one program during the year. This program may consist of the study and works of one or many authors, a study of literature on a particular subject or a guest speaker, movie, etc., that the girl may choose to present. At each weekly meeting each member must answer the roll call with a quotation on the particular subject which is to be presented that day.

In years past, Haught Literary Society has published an anthology of poetry and prose written by the students and faculty of West Virginia Wesleyan College. Since this had to be discontinued because of insufficient funds, the organization works each year on a project to raise money for the express purpose of building up a reserve so that it may again realize this objective.

It is a tradition of Haught Literary Society to hold a banquet each spring to which a special speaker is invited. This is the climaxing event of the year.

FUTURE TEACHERS of AMERICA

The students who are interested in teaching have been organized for several years as the Morris P. Shawkey chapter of Future Teachers of America. Ralph Pettie is president of the organization. Other officers are: Nancy Fasanelli, vice-president; Shina Masui, secretary; and Barbara Dawson, treasurer.

This year three representatives were sent to the state conclave at Jackson's Mill. In the state election, Janet Belcher, one of our representatives, was elected first vice-president.

The National Educational Association Journal and the West Virginia Educational Journal provide printed sources for all the members.

A student panel discussion and an address by Mr. Brown Tussler, Upshur County Superintendent of Schools, have highlighted our programs this year. Such programs as these are designed to help the students become more familiar with the teaching profession and educational systems of the United States.

PLAYSHOP

As the curtain opened on Playshop last fall it revealed a loyal, hard-working cast of potential actors with John South, Diane Dietenhofer and Mary Lou Pruett playing the leading roles. A new group of understudies opened the year by making their debuts before a college audience in three one-act plays. The plays were under student direction with Shirley Kessler directing Barrie's "The Twelve Pound Look;" John South, "Trifles;" and Ralph Pettie, "The Strangest Feeling."

The major fall production was "The Brother," by Wilson, with Mary Lou Pruett and Ralph Pettie under the spotlights. This was the Christian Emphasis Week production.

Several other one-act plays were presented which included "Philosopher of Butterbiggins," directed by Marilyn Wickerham—"The Dear Departed," directed by Ralph Pettie—and "Dear Little Wife," directed by John South.

ALPHA PSI OMEGA

Alpha Psi Omega, national honorary dramatics fraternity, has had a busy year. "The Brother," a three-act religious drama, was produced for Christian Emphasis Week and later taken to Elkins for a repeat performance. Members have both directed and participated in one-act plays presented by Playshop.

Two new members initiated during the first semester were Marjorie McCullough and Diane Dietenhofer. In order to meet the qualifications for membership in Alpha Psi Omega, an individual must show advanced ability in staging, acting, and other techniques of play production. Another initiation was held in the spring for those deserving membership.

Alpha Rho cast of Alpha Psi Omega officers were: Ralph Pettie, president; Marilyn Wickerham, vice-president; and Shirley Kessler, secretary-treasurer.

SOCIOLOGY CLUB

One of the newer groups on campus, The Sociology Club, resumed activities again this year under the guidance of Dr. Glorene Schaper, advisor, who gave much time, interest, and free samples of her cooking to further inspiration.

The club is open to all junior and senior sociology majors who wish to socialize—in an intellectually sociological manner, of course! Regular Monday meetings, held monthly, were pleasant and stimulating times when we frequently discussed, listened, and always ate.

During the year, the club had as a project the carrying out of a survey noting the increase of birth rate with regard to the number of children born into each Wesleyan graduate's family. (Note: babies are on the increase!)

The group also enjoyed both a field trip in the spring and our guest speaker who gave us such a thorough and interesting picture of the field of social work in West Virginia.

Aside from our regular activities, the club kept a special file with material on graduate schools in the field of the social sciences and information on vocational opportunities for college graduates in the area of sociology.

The Photographic Arts Club is one of the younger organizations on campus. The club was formed by a small group of camera fans, and, under the guidance of Dr. J. E. Judson, advisor, the number of members is steadily increasing. Membership is not restricted only to the experienced photographers, but is open to beginners who have an earnest desire to learn about photography.

The purposes of the club are to provide basic photographic instructions to beginners, and to make facilities for developing and printing available to advanced amateurs. Through close association with fellow fans, the members seek to develop and improve their skill in taking pictures, developing and printing them.

Facilities available to the club include a darkroom and a meeting room, both located in the Science Hall. The darkroom is not elaborate, but it is adequate for the present time. At the bi-monthly meetings, there are lectures on different phases of photography and constructive criticism of work done by the individual members. Plans for the future include a photographic exhibition.

BETTY LAMP CLUB

Left: MRS. ESTHER T. McALLESTER, A.B., North Central College; M.S., Cornell University.

The Betty Lamp, symbol of homemaking, is the seal and name of our home economics club. The Betty Lamp club accepts as members interested students who are majoring or minoring in home economics.

In regular meetings this year, club members have learned how to do many things to be utilized in their homes of the future as well as in careers based on home economics. Wrapping Christmas gifts, listening to records on careers in home economics and a freezing demonstration are a few of the many programs the members have enjoyed. Many of these programs were in the home economics cottage which added a homey atmosphere.

The barbecue at Homecoming is always a big event of the club. A new undertaking this year, under the supervision of Mrs. Esther McAllester, advisor, was a breakfast in the home ec. cottage for all alumnae home economics majors and minors as well as undergraduate students.

Through the work of the executive council composed of Marilyn Wickerham, president; Jean Allen, vice-president; Carolyn Boling, secretary-treasurer; Arline Franquiz, social chairman; and Kay Williams, publicity chairman; the club is striving for a national honorary home economics fraternity on Wesleyan's campus.

LIFE in the HOME EC HOUSE

Girls who are majoring or minoring in home economics are required to live in the home management house for a period of six weeks which is usually in their senior year. It gives the girls an excellent opportunity to learn all the duties of managing a home.

In the midst of classes and activities, one may wonder how these girls can find time to keep house. It is one of the best experiences a girl can have in view of her life in the future. Many exciting episodes occur along with all the heartaches of a well-cooked meal.

Each year the girls living in the house welcome many guests and visitors. This year the house of "Jemarlebet" entertained many faculty members and students. In spite of all the hard work they really enjoy learning what it is to have a home their own.

A rare moment of relaxation!

SADIE HAWKINS DAY

After a long and bitter struggle Sadie Hawkins got her man, like many other fair young lassies, as Wesleyan's campus witnessed another Sadie Hawkins Day celebration on Saturday, November 20, 1954. Unpleasant weather forced the cancellation of many of the day's events, and drove the builders of Dogpatch Village inside the gym. "Spirits" remained high, however, as six of the campus organizations "kumstruktred" their buildings. The men of Phi Sigma Epsilon fraternity captured the prize with their "Dogpatch Armory." Marryin' Sam Smyth was the busiest preacher in town as the lassies dragged their lads from hither and yon to be tied by the 'everlastin' knot."

The Dogpatch Sock Hop with the College Dance Band in the spotlight, was a great success. After much discussion, Shirley Brinkman and Don Hancock won the "Daisy Mae" and "Lil' Abner" honors, and Ruth Grose received the prize for making her man the "purtiest corsage."

DELTA PSI KAPPA

Delta Psi Kappa is a national honorary fraternity for women who are majoring or minoring in physical education. The organization was founded in 1916 at the Normal College of the American Gymnastic Union. A charter was issued to the group in 1917, thus giving the right to found sister chapters in other schools.

Alpha Eta chapter here at Wesleyan is one of the most active groups on campus. Miss Charlotte Knepshield, professor of physical education, is the faculty sponsor. The group sponsors a project every year for the betterment of some phase of activity on the campus. For these projects, the girls make money by selling programs at the West Virginia Intercollegiate Conference Tournament, checking coats at all the basketball games and usually sponsoring a professional meeting at which some phase of physical education is stressed.

Last year, the Wesleyan chapter of Delta Psi Kappa served as a co-hostess at the national convention at New York City. Barbara Dawson was sent as the official delegate and nine other girls attended.

WOMEN'S RECREATION ASSOCIATION

The first activity of the Women's Recreation Association was a wiener roast in September. Miss Charlotte Knepshield, advisor, held the spotlight with her "swat-fly" game. The freshmen were introduced to the sport of snipe hunting by their wise upperclassmen.

The scavenger hunt ended with a real treasure of Spudnuts for those who worked hard on the float.

The Christmas party was held at the SCOW. The girls brought gifts and put them under the Christmas tree for Santa to deliver to needy children on Christmas Eve. After playing games and having refreshments, the party ended with a Christmas story.

The big event of the year was the Valentine "Sweetheart Dance" with the Collegians playing. Cupid was the guest of honor.

The carnival, with its gaiety, streamers, and booths made it fun to collect money for the World University Service. The hamburger fry at the park in May was the finishing touch to a year full of activities.

Another great year has passed and been recorded in Wesleyan's athletic history book. But the ever-energetic cheerleaders, the unsung heroes, have no recorded history. They practice, give their valuable time, "holler and hoot," get hoarse and recover, but there's no written record about that.

Marg Brooke, a senior from Lumberport, West Virginia, was head cheerleader for the first part of the year; while Ann Moss, also a senior, from Cowen, held down the lead spot for the remainder of the season. The other three regular cheerleaders were Priscilla Howard, a sophomore from Cowen, West Virginia; Nancy Fasanelli, a senior from Dunbar, West Virginia; and Don Hancock, a junior from Scarsdale, New York, the only male member of the group, and also its chauffeur.

Two new cheerleaders were chosen in the persons of Elaine Sheppard and Margaret Carper. Elaine hails from Petersburg, West Virginia, and Marg from Athens, West Virginia. Both are freshmen.

This energetic team travelled to many of the away games as well as inspiring the crowd at all the home games. The cheerleaders play a very important part in the athletic program by creating spirit and enthusiasm in Wesleyan fans. This year's group did a fine job in fulfilling this purpose.

West Virginia Wesleyan College under Coaches Dave Reemsnyder and Hank Ellis had a fair season. Winning two games, tying one and losing four, the Bobcat football team gained needed experience for next season. Losing only Jack Reabe, Gene Roach, and Joe Talbott via graduation, the team will have a strong nucleus to build a winning team next year.

The Wesleyan field hockey team is the only intercollegiate sport for girls sponsored at West Virginia Wesleyan. The team has been nicknamed "The Bobkittens." For the past two years, the "Bobkittens" have been undefeated.

The girls, coached by Miss Charlotte Knepshield, started the season off by defeating Davis and Elkins College with a score of 5-0. In playing four other games, the scores stood as follows:

West Virginia University.....	1	Wesleyan.....	7
Davis and Elkins College.....	0	Wesleyan.....	44
West Virginia University.....	1	Wesleyan.....	8
Bethany College.....	0	Wesleyan.....	5

Homecoming weekend, the Wesleyan "Bobkittens" played the Pittsburgh Professional Team in an exhibition game. The final score ended in a tie of 3-3.

The scoring of the "Bobkittens" in the 1954 season was led by Patty Wilt, sophomore, who scored 12 points. In order as follows are the goals made by the other line members: Jean Cross—8, Beverly Sherbaum—3, Linda Sowers—2, Jane Gaston—1, Shina Masui—1.

The positions played by the girls on the team are listed below.

Center—Jean Cross. Inners—Patty Wilt, Beverly Sherbaum. Ends— Shina Masui, Jane Gaston, Linda Sowers, Kay Rider, Elsie Rosenberger. Center Back—Kay Post, Carolyn Lewis. The 1955 WVIAC was brought to a close by the playing of the annual tournament in Buckhannon, W. Va. It was a tourney of thrills and upsets as many records fell. West Virginia Wesleyan set three new tourney records by beating Shepherd State in the first game. Alderson-Broaddus and Morris Harvey clashed in the final game with Morris Harvey victor by three points in an over-time. Harp O'Toole was the only Wesleyan player to place on the all-tournament team. Ann Moss was named one of the all-tournament cheerleaders.

WOMEN'S INTRAMURALS

What are you all looking for?

Get that ball, girl!

All able-bodied young women with a composite of interest, time and enthusiasm can find a recreational outlet in Wesleyan's Intramural Program for Girls.

Teams are organized on a class basis, and each team's captain is appointed by Miss Knepshield. With the abundance of energetic freshmen this year, there were frequently several freshman teams to provide competition for the seasoned upper classmen.

Throughout the entire school year the girls participated in at least one main seasonal sport.

The play-offs of the autumn hockey games had barely been completed before winter sent the girls inside to compete in volleyball and basketball. Before returning to the outdoors again, special tournaments in shuffleboard and ping-pong were completed. A new arrangement of an old game entered the Intramurals program this year—coed badminton! With the coming of spring, the girls once again returned to the outer world to seek the winning girls' softball team.

MEN'S INTRAMURALS

Don't hip me, George!!

The intramurals are for men who can not participate in the varsity sports due to lack of time. There are all kinds of games starting with football and ending with softball. Basketball, volleyball, table tennis and handball are other sports the men can take part in.

The Intramurals of '55, for both men and women, were under the supervision of the Physical Education Department and under the immediate direction of student assistants, Jean Cross and Shockey Cadle, whose guidance and encouragement helped to make it a year of fun and good sportsmanship.

What are you guys looking at?

Jump nice fellows!

BETA BETA BETA

After two years or dormancy, Beta Mu chapter of Beta Beta Beta has again become active under the guidance of Dr. J. E. Judson, head of the biology department.

On November 28, Dr. Judson and several alumni from Buckhannon initiated twelve prospective biologists into active membership and four into provisional membership.

The purpose of this honorary biological fraternity is to bring greater unity to biology majors and minors on campus, place them in contact with biologists and prospective biologists all over the world, and bring them current news and programs of interest from off-campus sources.

The fraternity plans to bring to the campus programs that will be of interest to the general public. Programs for this year included movies, talks by Senator G. O. Young and Dr. F. M. Farnsworth, and a banquet featuring Dr. R. B. Weimer, national president of Beta Beta Beta.

On the verge of discovery!

Making name plates for the trees on campus was one of this year's projects.

In April several members were privileged to attend a regional meeting of the fraternity at Bethany College. A few of these members were called upon to present research papers at this meeting.

It is hoped that membership in this fraternity will result in a larger contribution to the world of biology.

As we gaze into our mystic, magic washbottle in the year of 1921, we see the Benzene Ring was not a result of spontaneous combustion, but of much thought and planning by Dr. Nicholas Hyma and his quantitative class. An exact formula was visualized—Work + Loyalty = Good Society + Success.

Now the mist parts and we see the year 1954-55 with Chief Element Bob Dessent creating a nucleus of officers with Joe Talbott, vice-president; Newt Anderson, treasurer; Lillian Alfred, secretary; and Kirk Herrick, sergeant-at-arms.

More current—more yield!

As we turn our unusual washbottle we see that the concentration of this effervescent group has changed from 11 present at the beginning of the reaction to 33 at the last observation.

New elements were absorbed into the Ring with an exploding, colorful reaction—the external indicator being green limbs and “apron-ed” necks.

The Benzene Ring, in recognizing the importance of fun combined with digestion (not Kjeldahl), has held Strawberry Breakfasts for the past five years. This event is highlighted with the crowning of the Camphor King. His Highness, Fred Long, took the honors last year for producing the most camphor in Organic Lab.

Guess we'd better put away our washbottle, along with our dreams of a dance and a blood-drive, until another day!

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB

To facilitate world understanding, the International Relations Club came into existence in 1914. Gradually they spread until they now number more than 700 in the United States and Canada. Prior to 1948 there was no formal national organization of the clubs. In that year, however, representatives of several clubs came together to form the Association of International Relations Clubs. This organization, in turn, then cooperated with the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

Since July 1, 1954, the Association of International Relations Clubs has been officially affiliated with the Foreign Policy Association in the same manner with which it has, since its beginning, worked with the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

On our campus, International Relations Club was reorganized in January, 1954, with Dr. Marvin Downey as advisor. Dr. Downey, on leave-of-absence from Wesleyan, is now in Iraq serving as professor of political science and furthering his education in the same field of study. Dr. G. L. Glauner, professor of history, is now serving as advisor to the organization.

Two delegates from the local club were sent to the International Relations Club convention in New York City in April of last year.

At Wesleyan, the aim of the International Relations Club is embodied in the preface to its constitution:

"We, the members of the International Relations Club of West Virginia Wesleyan College, in order that we ourselves and our fellow students and associates may better understand the peoples of the world and the problems which confront them, have pledged ourselves to study and interpret pertinent issues of international concern unbiasedly, and to submit these studies and reports to all persons interested in world peace and the removal of barriers which hamper it."

highest point, and from New York City, the commercial capital of the modern world, and the No. 1 target in the first and last atomic war.

They come from backgrounds of peace and war—bringing the coed who takes off at the sight of a mouse, and the veteran who has bested formidable foes in hand to hand combat in bloody trenches.

They come from Protestant churches, Catholic cathedrals, Jewish synagogues, Buddhist temples, Moslem mosques, and the barrens of atheism.

They come from the plateaus of moral rectitude, and from the miasmic swamps of moral compromise.

They come from the diverse cultural backgrounds of racial groups called black, and brown, and white, and yellow—to Wesleyan, where, thank God, discrimination and segregation were at last ended, prior to the historic United States Supreme Court decision of May 17, 1954—ended by vigorous Christian conviction, and devotion to democracy, reminiscent of Jesus and Lincoln.

In short, the pathways that converge on Wesleyan come from almost everywhere; and they come because people everywhere are attracted by the ideal values of truth, beauty, and goodness that are concentrated in maximum and magnetic measure in a Christian college.

Having reached Wesleyan, these multitudinous pathways from almost everywhere merge into several well-travelled main pathways, with a disconcerting number of bypaths and detours and dead-end trails, most of which, however ingenious the deception in the markers, lead deeply into the Black Forest of procrastination, rationalization, frustration, and desperation.

Such bypaths and detours often attract the harebrained, who can not maintain the intellectual pace set on the main pathways; the drifters on the sea of life, devoid of any high ambition or any noble purpose; the occasional pervert whom Mother Nature cursed with more sex than sense; and the youthful anti-intellectuals who agree with Pope that “a little learning is a dangerous thing,” who reason (?) that any deep draught of learning would, therefore, certainly be lethal, who love life (of a kind), and want to live (in a way), and who are, on general principles, or for lack of principles, allergic to learning.

A favorite pastime among these addlescent babes in the woods is fooling the professor, cheating on examinations, getting an unearned grade (pasting a false label on an empty can)—a performance comparable in intellectuality to pouring prescribed penicillin down the drain to fool the physician. So much for comic relief.

By contrast, the well-travelled main pathways at Wesleyan are all one-way, all steep and straight, all rugged and rewarding—and are traversed by an increasing and unending procession of students, some as hungry-minded as Lincoln, and all, in varying degrees, philosophers (lovers of wisdom), human interrogation points, seeking truth, as heliophilous vines in tropical rain forests trail toward the tallest tree-tops, seeking the sun.

Pursued with perseverance and patience, these main pathways at Wesleyan lead to levels of comprehension, and competence, and culture, and concern, and compassion, and Christian commitment, below which the life good to live is relatively impossible.

They lead their youthful pilgrims and pundits, to mention a mundane matter first, from the state of economic dependence, from being economic burdens to others, from their puerile proclivity to expect parents to give them everything, and professors to give them grades, to the state of economic independence, of being able to bear their own economic burden and help others bear theirs, of being, mirabile visus, willing taxpayers, and, so far as dame (sic) fortune and neopublicans permit, true philanthropists, who give generously and gladly to good causes, in general—cultural, and educational, and eleemosynary, and religious—and to their Alma Mater, in particular.

These well-travelled pathways at Wesleyan lead those who follow them faithfully to discover life's rich deposits of learning—as a lanky lad named Lincoln found them in frequent fireside feasts on borrowed books, and as a precocious twelve-year-old from notorious Nazareth found them in the meeting of the theological faculty in the temple in Jerusalem. Lincoln became so absorbed in books that he forgot to go to bed. Jesus became so absorbed in what the professor had to say that he forgot to go home. (How incomprehensible to the alleged student, whose rule of life is never to study when he can sleep, and never to attend class or chapel if he can find, or fabricate, an excuse for another absence.)

Imagine young Lincoln in our library—always coming early and eagerly, and always leaving last and reluctantly. Imagine Jesus, at eighteen, in our classroom—always alert, always attentive, always asking—a professor's dream come true (and a delightful change from his diurnal nightmares). To an encouraging degree, many who traverse the pathways of Wesleyan emulate the hungrymindedness and the highmindedness of Lincoln and Jesus. Example: A student recently complained, "All my class periods are too short."

The pathways at Wesleyan bring those who follow them faithfully under the influence of scholarly and exemplary teachers. Through association with such teachers, deeply devoted to learning, and to lofty living, and to selfless service, young wayfarers are informed and inspired, and have their ideals ennobled, and their sense of duty deepened, "as men walking in the sun have their faces browned without knowing it." What is taught those who climb the pathways of Wesleyan is important; but who teaches them is vastly more important.

To study the Bible—in which one finds the greatest literature of all time, the Christian scriptures; the greatest character of all time, Jesus of Nazareth; and the greatest institution of all time, the Christian church—is, under any circumstance, a rare opportunity; but to study the Bible under the direction of Dr. Ralph C. Brown is a unique privilege, second only to sitting at the feet of Amos, Hosea, Isaiah, Jeremiah, and Jesus themselves.

To study the great literary masterpieces of the world, from Homer to Hardy, is a richly rewarding experience anywhere; but to study them under the tutelage of Dr. Lewis H. Chrisman is to have the richness of the reward enhanced manyfold, and to feel that one has not missed too much by never meeting Dante, Shakespeare, Goethe, and Emerson face to face. In the manner of all truly great teachers, Dr. Chrisman makes Dante clearer than Dante made himself, etc. On occasion he brings home to the student who, like Peter, is following afar off, a vivid realization that not all the space in hell has been allotted to ancient and medieval miscreants.

To study Chemistry, one of the vast new areas of scientific knowledge, might be a great intellectual adventure anywhere; but the study of Chemistry under Dr. Nicholas Hyma is an entrancing experience. His students love him, and wax enthusiastic about the subject he teaches—so much so that Wesleyan ranks 37th, in order of highest to lowest, among all the institutions of higher learning in the United States in the proportion of male graduates completing Ph.D. degrees in science.

Did space permit, we could continue to call the roll of the Wesleyan faculty, and cite great teaching and great learning in area after area; but we must be content with this brief mention, in alphabetical order, of the three who have served longest on the Wesleyan faculty—a total of 103 years, with more to be added. The pathways of Wesleyan are celebrated for the exceptional educational experiences to which they lead.

As serious students pursue the pathways of Wesleyan, they achieve intellectual, moral, and religious maturity, and leave behind “childish things.” Having achieved such maturity, and having mastered a methodology for finding and testing truth, they are emancipated from the gullibility that too few ever outgrow, and from the tangled tentacles of tradition, and from a hellish heritage of prejudice; and are armored against the omnipresent and insidious power of propaganda. This is liberal, and liberating, education. This is what Jesus was talking about when he said, “Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free.”

Students thus freed, liberated, emancipated—by being educated—can, and will, subject contemporary and future life to rational, moral, and Christian criticism that will help transform this demon-dominated world into the Kingdom of God. That way, to the ends of the earth, and to the end of time, lead the paths from Wesleyan—paths to be trodden by an ever-increasing host of competent, cultured, Christian persons.

Bon voyage!

LYNCH-RAINE ADMINISTRATION BUILDING

Coming from College Avenue, one ascends the Senior Walk that leads to the Administration Building. Here the student's life commences. He can arrange a conference with the president in his office, if he has not already had one. From the office of the dean he is kept informed as to whether or not he is making the grade. Occasionally he visits the treasurer's office, especially when the "balance due" notices appear.

His intellectual curiosity is satisfied and broadened by the class lectures he attends in this building. And oh yes!—twice a week he goes to the chapel and assembly programs in Atkinson Chapel, which also serves as a concert hall or stage theater. On the third floor, Brown Chapel provides a place for individual meditation and also for M. S. M. Sunday discussions and vespers on Thursdays.

Within this time-honored landmark center the serious activities of a busy college community.

AGNES HOWARD HALL

A landmark to be remembered by nearly all fellows and girls is "Agony Inn," the spot of many campus romances. Students, friends, visitors and guests keep the dorm a place of never-ending excitement and commotion.

Although the building is old in structure, the furnishings are very modern—providing comfortable and convenient living quarters for the girls who reside within her walls.

The memories and nightmares of "dorm life" at Agnes Howard will linger on in the minds of all its "family."

PFEIFFER MEMORIAL LIBRARY

Dedicated on March 13, 1953, the Library is a storehouse of voluminous knowledge. In the evening, brilliant lights illuminate this building, one of the newest and most picturesque buildings on campus.

At all hours of the day or night, hopeful scholars industriously pour over their books. For these scholars, as well as faculty members, the Library provides all the books and periodicals needed for reference, research or recreational reading.

GYMNASIUM

During basketball season, intramurals and other indoor sports events, all Wesleyan walks lead to the gymnasium.

Of no less importance is the college dining hall, located on the lower floor of the gym. Three times a day several hundred starving boys pass through its doors to a table of "good and plenty."

No one will forget the evenings when the atmosphere of the gymnasium was completely changed into an enchanted ballroom with soft music and festive decorations for the big college dances.

The recollection of the gymnasium will bring forth a composite of cherished memories to many Wesleyan students.

“OLD MUSIC BOX”

In spite of its recently acquired nickname, the “Old Music Box” will always command deferential respect from former students who received their instruction in this building and who have gone on to achieve distinction in the world of music.

As a result of the rapid expansion of the department of music, that department has been recently re-located in Loar Hall. The “Old Music Box” is still being of service on our campus in housing several administrative offices.

The atmosphere of the building has been enlivened by the remodeling of several rooms for the use of sorority girls.

LOAR HALL of MUSIC and FINE ARTS

Developing into a larger and better art and music center, the Loar Memorial Hall is rapidly earning a traditional position as the cultural center of the campus. Young artists and musicians strive for perfection under the guidance of their fine instructors.

Student recitals and receptions are held in the auditorium and Loar Memorial Room respectively. Although one may go into the Loar Room countless times, he will never tire of its ornate furnishings which always create a feeling of admiration. These students of today are the concert pianists and artists of tomorrow.

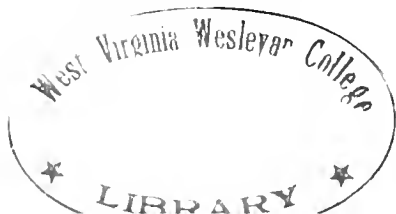

HAYMOND SCIENCE HALL

Through many bleak Decembers and balmy Mays, the Science Hall, one of Wesleyan's oldest buildings, has triumphantly stood on the northern grounds of the campus.

Haymond Science Hall will always bring nostalgic memories to the students who have practically lived within its walls doing their experiments and trying to solve the mysteries of chemicals in bottles and test tubes.

A world-wide collection of animals in the Hudkins Museum is one of the outstanding features of this building.

Through her doors have walked young scientists and biologists, hopeful doctors and dentists.

RESIDENCE HALL for MEN

A red-brick building, large front porch, green shutters and imposing Greek columns are descriptive of one of the newest buildings on campus, the Men's Residence Hall. It is mainly a freshman dorm, but also houses several upperclassmen who act as floor proctors and assistant hosts.

Each of the forty-four spacious rooms are equipped with modern furniture and ample closet room. The boys take great pride in keeping their rooms neat and clean for visitors and guests who wish to tour the new dormitory.

MAY DAY--1954

JOYCE PUSTINGER, MARILYN AVEYARD, BARBARA BARRON, PEGGY WRIGHT, BEVERLY HAMRICK.

The traditionally beautiful May Day ceremonies occupy a special page in every Wesleyan coed's scrapbook of memories. It is for the students, an event as eagerly awaited as Homecoming weekend.

Students swarmed into Atkinson Chapel and silence fell over the crowd as May Queen Barbara Barron and her court, composed of Joyce Pustinger, senior attendant from Tarrington, Connecticut; junior attendant Beverly Hamrick, from Lanett, Alabama; sophomore attendant Peggy Wright, from Beckley, West Virginia; and Marilyn Aveyard, freshman attendant from Gardner, Massachusetts, awaited in the chapel doorway to descend the aisle to the familiar strains of "Pomp and Circumstance."

After the coronation, Barbara and her court retired to give the over-anxious sororities, fraternities and independants an opportunity to display their vocal talent. An atmosphere of silent suspense reigned over the auditorium once more as the judges made that momentous decision. The second place trophy was awarded to the men's independant group. Screams of joy and laughter grew even louder as the women's independant group was given first place in the "Sing."

A perfect weekend was brought to a close with the annual May Day Dance.
